Community Day Services & Supported Employment

Centerstone assists with community employment for adults who live in Franklin and Williamson counties with intellectual and developmental disabilities by helping to foster job skills. Service plans are based on a person's strengths, abilities, needs and preferences.

Vocational Services
- Individualized and systematic processes in which workers learn to identify viable vocational options and develop employment-based strategies, based upon outcomes listed in conflict-free personal plans and other areas of interest to the worker.
- Services utilize worker's background information and employment history in combination with skill-based assessment, situational assessments, community-based work opportunities and contracts, prevailing labor market data, occupational guidance, assistive technology, and individualized accommodations or modifications.
- Industry-standard wages based on abilities and compensation scales. Workers are paid bi-monthly and receive additional work-related benefits such as vacation, sick leave and holiday pay.

Developmental Training
- Day Services in the local community setting, with an emphasis on opportunities, socialization, activities of daily living, and individualized needs.
- Training programs tailored to personalized areas of interest, level of care needs, and individualized skill set or work level to assist in improving ability and improving independence.
- Accommodations for differently abled adults, alongside skilled training specialists and support staff to meet variable needs.
